

Headline 1: Lobby your Reps directly

Description 1: Contact your elected officials to propose or support vital bills and constitutional amendments.

Headline 2: Pass state and federal bills.

Description 2: Speak to state and federal lawmakers. Use our platform to write, call, and influence your representative.

Headline 3: Restore citizen power now

Description 3: Take action on women's rights, fair voting, and getting big corporate money out of politics

Narrative 1,2,3: registration verifies your status as a registered voter in your congressional district. Direct access to your congressional and state representatives is provided. Communication with fellow district voters is accommodated. Joint action within your district and coordinated efforts with other districts is encouraged.

Headline 4: Citizens, not "bodies," should decide seats

Description 4: A Citizen Political Equality Amendment aligns representation with citizens only, so every citizen's voice counts equally citizens who are done letting donors and party bosses run the show.

Headline 5: Citizens are done letting donors and party bosses run the show.

Description 5: For generations, we've counted bodies for seats while money and party machines called the shot

Narrative 4,5: Constitution could be amended so that congressional and state legislative districts shall be drawn so that, as nearly as practicable, each district contains an equal number of citizens of voting age, consistent with this portion of the amendment and other provisions of this Constitution. No state shall draw districts with the predominant purpose or effect of materially diluting the voting power of a class of citizens, relative to other citizens, solely by reason of their residence in areas with high numbers of non-citizens or non-voting persons

Headline 6: Corporations and big money manage the political scene

Description 1: Supreme Court provides Corporations, and big money donors financing freedom not available to individual donor.

Headline 6: Common citizen participation in the political process continues to be minimized.

Narrative 6: In the Citizens United decision of 2010, the Supreme Court allowed unlimited donations by corporations and big money including dark money while the individual citizen donations are tightly limited.

The recent Supreme Court decision NRSC v. FEC, decided June 30, 2026 that FECA's limits on coordinated party expenditures violate the First Amendment, which means political parties can now coordinate much more freely with candidates and spend far more money in support of them.

Headline 7: Women's rights continue to be threatened

Description 7: Women's rights diminished by overturn of Roe V. Wade

Narrative 7: In regulating matters involving a viable fetus and a pregnant person, Congress and the States may enact laws to protect potential human life, provided that such laws do not deny the pregnant person equal protection of the laws, bodily integrity, or life-preserving medical care. Nothing in this Section shall be construed to mandate or forbid any particular medical procedure, but all such regulation shall conform to the guarantees of the Constitution.

Headline 1: Restore the Republican Guarantee

Description 1: Article IV, Section 4 of the Constitution promises every state a republican form of government. That promise requires citizen power—not rule by party machines, corporate money, or unaccountable institutions.

Narrative 1: Article IV, Section 4 guarantees every state a republican form of government. A republic is not government by party machinery, corporate wealth, ideological factions, or permanent political classes. It is government deriving its just powers from citizens and administered by accountable representatives.

Today, concentrated money, party control, opaque institutions, and diminished citizen access have weakened that guarantee in practice. Our purpose is to restore the preeminence of the citizen in American constitutional life.

We hold every party, officeholder, court, corporation, and public institution to one standard: does it expand or diminish the practical power, equal civic standing, and constitutional rights of the citizen?

Headline 2: Political rights belong to natural persons, not artificial entities or financial treasuries.

Description 2: Money may assist political communication, but money must not become a substitute for citizenship or a mechanism by which wealth purchases governing power.

Narrative 2:

- Support reversal of the practical effects of Citizens United through constitutional amendment and lawful legislation.
- Clarify that corporations, unions, PACs, and other artificial entities do not possess political-spending rights equal to those of natural persons.
- Support transparent disclosure of the true sources of political spending.
- Establish reasonable limits on campaign spending and coordinated party expenditures where constitutionally authorized.
- Expand low-dollar, citizen-funded alternatives such as matching funds, democracy vouchers, or voluntary public financing.

Headline 3: Political parties and elected officials must be accountable

Description 3: Political parties may participate in democratic life, but they must not become substitutes for the people.

Narrative 3:

- Require greater transparency in party financing, endorsements, candidate-selection procedures, and coordinated expenditures.
- Encourage open, fair, and accessible candidate-selection processes.
- Establish constituent-response standards for congressional, state, and local offices.
- Publish public scorecards showing whether officials answer constituent requests, hold accessible meetings, disclose positions, and act on citizen-supported reforms.
- Use citizen pledges to secure written commitments from candidates and officeholders.

Headline 4: The citizen is the Constitutional principal. Parties, corporations, and government officials are agents.

Description 4. There is one simple test for every policy, candidate pledge, legislative proposal, court decision, and platform feature: Does this increase the ability of individual citizens to govern themselves through informed, equal, and accountable representation?

Narrative 4:

Every citizen should possess meaningful—not merely theoretical—political influence.

- Protect equal voting rights for qualified citizens.
- Require transparent and accessible election administration.
- Oppose systems that make citizens politically irrelevant after Election Day.
- Create durable district-level means for citizens to communicate, organize, deliberate, and petition together.
